Says Commission Has Failed To Pass on Rehearing Application

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS, April 2—The motion for a rehearing of the Logan Gas Co. case was overruled by the state utilities commission here today.

[illegible] appealed to the Ohio supreme court for a reversal of [illegible] decree of the state utilities commission which fixed a present value of $10,840,8050 upon property of this company [illegible] furnishing natural gas [illegible] municipalities, villages and rural districts of Ohio.

The appeal was filed at Columbus. This valuation was [illegible] in an order [illegible] by the commission Jan. 31 [illegible] after an extended hearing and investigation based upon protest [illegible] the company's request for the commission's approval [illegible] of increased rates.

The commission proposed to use this final valuation as the basis for determining a new schedule of rates and charges for these 80 municipalities, villages and rural districts which constitute what is known as the non-ordinance group.

Only Half Value Claim

Claiming that the commission's valuation is but approximately 50 per cent of the correct value of said property of plaintiff in error (the Logan Gas Co.) and on which the plaintiff in error should be permitted to earn a reasonable rate of return, President Cross asked the supreme court to reverse and vacate the commission's judgments and findings in this case and [illegible] to the company all things that it has lost by reason thereof.

Asserting that the commission failed to pass upon the company's application for a rehearing, Cross claimed various errors prejudicial to this plaintiff in error were made in the commission's finding and order and proceedings.

"After that nothing was clear. I heard another shot and I felt a sting in my leg. I saw the little boy on the floor with a revolver in his hand."

GAS TAX BILL TO BE CALLED UP WEDNESDAY

House To Get Measure First, Then Senate on Thursday

COOPER GIVES APPROVAL

Governor Aligns Himself with Farm Interests, To Cost $11,000,000 Annually

COLUMBUS, April 2—As a result of Gov. Myers Y. Cooper's approval of the proposal the house calendar committee today announced that the Sulzmann-Bostwick bill increasing the state gasoline tax from three to four cents per gallon will be called up in the house Wednesday for passage.

Senate leaders plan to have the senate vote Thursday on the question of passing this bill.

Gov. Cooper today had announced his support of the increased gasoline tax bill.

With the chief executive aligning himself with the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, the Ohio State Grange and the Ohio Farm Bureau federation, chances for passage of the bill in both houses of the legislature appeared more than favorable today.

Will Cost $11,000,000

Sponsors of the bill declare that no trouble will be experienced in getting the required vote in the lower house.

Lt. Senator Alton G. Angler, senate floor leader, stated that he thought the [illegible] of the upper house would follow suit.

It was impossible as yet to determine what effect this will have on the general revenue bill which included an appropriation of $2,000,000 for road improvement work.

The four cent tax bill if passed will cost the Buckeye state motorists approximately $11,000,000 each year. Of this amount 60 per cent will go to the state, 10 per cent to the municipalities, 10 percent to be divided among the counties and the remaining 20 per cent going to the townships.

This would give the townships about $1,600,000, an increase of $600,000 over the sum provided in the general revenue bill.

The state's portion of the one cent increase will amount to more than $5,000,000 a year.

If the bill is passed it will be the third time in as many sessions of the

1. That congress speedily enact a farm relief measure along the lines indicated by the Republican platform and his own campaign speeches, with no equalization fee.

3. That congress reapportion itself as is mandatory under the constitution.
4. That congress repeal the national origins clause of the immigration act.

These are all considered pressing matters that should be dealt with at the extra session. Other matters can go over until the regular session next December, congress will be told.

Feared Johnson Planned To Have Her Sent to Asylum, Is Report

Hal K. Johnson, World war veteran and part owner of a West Side barber shop, is in a critical condition at the Marion City hospital from a wound inflicted by a 12-gauge shotgun in the hands of his wife.

Johnson was shot in the back as he slept at his home in second floor apartments at 795 Davids st., about 2 o'clock this morning.

He was reported to be slowly sinking at the hospital at noon today. It was reported that the lower half of his body was completely paralyzed. He was very weak when he arrived at the hospital due to loss of blood.

The only clue to a motive for the shooting came from both Johnson and his wife, Mrs. Stella Johnson, when questioned. Mrs. Johnson, according to this information, feared her husband was planning to have her adjudged insane and sent to an asylum and she said she loved him too much to leave him.

Johnson, although too weak to discuss the shooting to any extent, said his only plans were to remove her to the home of her parents where she might recuperate from a recent illness. Neither denied that Mrs. Johnson did the shooting.

Neighbor's Account

A neighbor across the hall from the Johnson rooms, giving her name as Mrs. Coleman, said she was aroused by the report of the gun and heard voices in Johnson's room, a man and a woman talking excitedly. After a short silence Mrs. Johnson ran up and down the stairs and began to scream, Mrs. Coleman relates.

Mrs. Coleman said she aroused a roomer there and began to investigate. Mrs. Johnson told them to send for an ambulance which was done, the W. C. Boyd ambulance responding to the call. Later arrivals called police who placed Mrs. Johnson in the county jail after Johnson was rushed to the hospital.

Johnson was with the Rainbow

Since the ministry of finance had already approved the scheme the public was amazed at the rejection by the ministry of commerce. It was hinted that the "Panama scandal" was responsible for the refusal.

It is understood the General Motors Corp. will approach the government with a new project.

There was some speculation today as to whether or not former Secretary of State Kellogg would reach France before the Tourville leaves for the United States. He is aboard the Ile De France which is not scheduled to arrive at Havre before Friday but it was believed possible that the cruiser would not leave until Kellogg had arrived and paid his last respects to his friend and diplomatic colleague.

NEW YORK, April 2—United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, who has been conducting an investigation [illegible] whether Rep. William M. Morgan of Ohio, an ardent dry, had violated the Jones law for which he voted by bringing liquor into New York on his arrival here March 25 on the liner Cristobal from Panama, declared in a statement today that no bottles of liquor were found, handled or seen by any of the customs officers and that the accusations against Morgan all came down to talk between themselves and Mr. Morgan.

Tuttle's statement, which was interpreted by legal experts as making the case against Morgan fall flatter than a paper cup, was given out following the questioning of eight members of the customs service, including Inspectors Louis Crawford and James McCabe, who examined the Ohio congressman's baggage.

Tuttle also declared that Mrs. Hall, the wife of a congressman, had nothing to do with the matter under investigation and that her baggage was examined and found lawful and in accordance with declaration.

OIL ENGINE TO BE MARKETED BY COMPANY

C. B. King Heads Subsidiary of Marion Steam Shovel Co.

NEW TYPE PRODUCT

Engine, Using Crude Oil, Operates on Vaporizing Principle

Announcement that a new type oil engine is about to be placed on the market was made today following the stockholders meeting of the Marion Motors Inc., a subsidiary company of the Marion Steam Shovel Co.

For more than a year and a half engineers have been working on the new engine in the steam shovel company plant here. All patents and license rights are owned by the Marion Steam Shovel Co. The motor company was incorporated in August, 1927. The product is known as the Marion oil engine.

King President

C. B. King, vice president of the Marion Steam Shovel Co., was elected president of the motor corporation at the meeting of officers yesterday. Other officers elected were J. W. Barnett, vice president and general manager; H. J. Cronin, secretary and treasurer; J. J. Ortsiefer, assistant secretary, and Alex. Gibson, assistant treasurer.

The directors named were J. L. Acheson, D. J. Shelton, Mr. King, Mr. Barnett, Frank A. Huber, Mr. Cronin and H. A. Tomalin, Jr.

The engine, which uses crude oil as fuel, is designed to operate on practically the same plan as a gasoline engine and will be adaptable to all uses to which a gasoline engine can be put. It differs from the ordinary oil engine in that the fuel is vaporized before it enters the combustion chamber and is then ignited by a spark plug.

Advantages of Engine

Builders of the engine claim that it can be built and put on the market at a much lower price than the ordinary oil engine in that the auxiliary parts on the motor built here are fewer and less complicated.

The engine will be built with one, two, four, six and eight cylinders. The horsepower will range from 10 to 200, depending largely on the number of cylinders. A number of the four cylinder motors are now being designed for use in one of the popular sizes of shovels put out by the steam shovel company. Others are ready for the market, officials stated today.

OHIO REALTY BOARD ADJUSTER IN MARION

J. H. Williamson Discusses New Law with Local Dealers

John H. Williamson special adjuster for the Board of Real Estate Examiners of the state of Ohio is in the city today investigating the activities of the local real estate brokers and discussing with them the real estate license law. Williamson is making a tour of the state visiting all the cities and discussing the law with real estate brokers.

Williamson explains real estate broker means a person firm or corporation who for a commission compensation or valuable consideration sells or offers for sale buys or offers to buy, negotiates the purchase or sale or exchange of real estate or leases or offers to lease, rents or offers for rent any real estate interest therein or improvement thereon for others.

The law contemplates putting into effect the rules of real estate practice which are practically the same as the national code of ethics adopted by the National Association of Real Estate Boards and which the members are bound to follow, he states.

Mr. Williamson reports real estate men most every where are living up to the ideals of the profession and beyond the law but there are a few complaints. The license may be revoked by the Real Estate Board of commissioners for the following reasons:

Knowingly making any substantial misrepresentations or

Making any false promises with intent to influence persuade or induce or

A continued and flagrant course of misrepresentation or the making of false promises through agents or salesmen or advertising or otherwise or

Acting for more than one party in a transaction without the knowledge or consent of all parties thereto or

Failure within a reasonable time to account for or to remit any moneys coming into his possession which belong to others or

Any other conduct whether of the same or a different character than hereinabove specified which constitutes dishonest dealing.

Detailed plans for improvement of the Berry-Golding ditch in [illegible] township were approved by the county commissioners in a meeting held Saturday at which several landowners were present. The ditch is a mile and a half in length. There was some dissension among farmers as to the improvement, as some desired merely to clean out the ditch, leaving it in its present dimensions, while others desired to straighten, deepen and widen it.

Fred W. Trumbo was allowed compensation of $75 and $350 damages caused by the ditch. Another claim was rejected. The commissioners will receive bids at 10 o'clock on April 2[illegible] for cleaning, straightening and deepening the ditch. Two years from De[illegible] 1[illegible] will be allowed for collection of special assessments. The estimated cost of the work was $1,16[illegible]

KONJOLA BRINGS AMAZING RELIEF TO YOUNG GIRL

Mother Tells How Medicine Restored Health of Her Fourteen Year Old Daughter

MISS ALBERTA ACKERMAN

"What a wonderful thing it would be if all mothers could know of the splendid qualities of this master medicine Konjola," said Mrs. Nellie Ackerman, speaking of her daughter Miss Alberta Ackerman, 1120 Harrisburg Road, Canton.

"It benefited my daughter beyond my fondest expectations. Alberta suffered greatly from constipation. She was subject to dull headaches and always complained about being tired. Her complexion was sallow and rough. She was never hungry. She was listless and wanted only to sit around and never had a desire to mingle with the other children.

"Konjola had done so much good in my own case that I decided to give it to her. Konjola went right to work and changed her appearance almost overnight. It corrected her bowel trouble, stimulated her liver and restored her appetite. That languid, tired feeling has given away to one of glorious energy and vigor. Her complexion has cleared up. I know that Konjola is a splendid remedy for children, not only as a medicine but as a general tonic."

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section. It contains twenty-two [illegible] extracted from natural plants which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels [illegible] more healthy action. The effect of the Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases [illegible] suffered [illegible] for years. At the same time many weak and rundown systems have been restored [illegible] of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product until now Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this section.

Konjola is sold in Marion at Stump & Sams Pharmacy and by all the best druggists throughout this section.—Adv.

CORONER'S INQUEST BEGUN AT AURORA

Acts Resulting in Woman's Death and Issuance of Warrant To Be Probed

AURORA, Ill., April 2—The tensely awaited inquiry into the death of Mrs. Lillian De King, killed in her home by Kane county dry raiders, was scheduled to get under way here today. The initial investigation will be in the form of a coroner's inquest.

It was just a week ago that six deputy sheriffs armed with shotguns, pistols, tear bombs and a warrant now declared to have been legally worthless, stormed the De King home, clubbed the head of the house, Joseph De King, unconscious, shot and killed his wife and so terrorized their 12-year-old son Gerald that he shot one of the raiders in the leg.

All of those acts and especially a series of prior acts leading to the issuance of the more than dubious search warrant are to be probed as thoroughly, according to Coroner Herman J. Vierke, as if the session were a criminal trial instead of only a coroner's inquest.

"I don't care how many days it takes to get to the bottom of this affair," said Coroner Vierke. "My purpose is to place before the jury of six men every scrap of evidence that has a bearing. Two duties are assigned to coroner's juries. One is to determine the cause of death, the other is to fix the responsibility. There will be no shirking of the second duty."

STOP THIS CRIMINAL

Of all the culprits who ply the trade of crime, the arsonist is to be most despised His victims have been legion. To gain dishonest dollars for himself the arsonist will sacrifice the life of others and imperil property of untold value.

But the hand of the law is fairly certain now to seize this criminal Detection and punishment have been brought to such a high percentage of success that he has small chance of escape. The Arson Squad generally gets its man!

The Stock Fire Insurance companies, through the National Board of Fire Underwriters and its Arson Committee, wage relentless war against the arsonist.

Squads of trained men work quietly and without noise or show, in co-operation with legal authorities, in every state of the Union, to guard the people of America against this crime of arson and the practice of incendiarism by pyromaniacs and other irresponsible persons

The results have been gratifying, and will be even more so when the American people realize the menace and cost of incendiary fires.

This is but one of many measures employed by the Stock Fire Insurance companies in the elimination of fire hazards—the conservation of life and property. The Arson Squad works constantly with police, fire marshals, fire departments and other officials.

May Take Year to Produce Evidence of Real Effect of Drastic Jones Law

Month Old Today, but Has Accomplished Little to Date, Recent Acts of Various Legislatures Are Reviewed

WASHINGTON April 2—The drastic Jones law, under which it is possible for judges to impose a five-year prison term and $10 000 fine for any violation of the Volstead act, no matter how trivial, is one month old today

It is a lusty infant, but like most infants has produced more noise than actual accomplishment during the first month of existence

Some thousands of arrests have been made throughout the country since President Coolidge attached his signature to this act at 10 30 o'clock on the morning of March 2 But as yet there has been no case reported wherein the courts have imposed the maximum penalties

Some authorities estimate that it will take at least a year to produce tangible evidence of the real effect of the law Court congestion in prohibition cases alone will operate to prevent a real test much before that they believe Meanwhile arrests go on

On Alert for Evidence

Both wets and drys are on the alert in Washington for evidence that may be used to bolster their arguments for or against the law The first of these arguments probably will be heard in the special session of congress that convenes in two weeks An effort is to be made in the special session to repeal or modify the act but it will be only a gesture It will fail, not only because of the preponderance of dry majorities in both houses, but also because it is admitted even by the wets that the law should be given a thorough trial before starting anything

A good many of the congressional wets insist that the Jones act is actually going to help their cause and for that reason are secretly hoping to see it drastically enforced

In substantiation of their claims in this respect they point to the great clamor which has been raised in the first short month of its existence as evidenced by the formation of voluntary lawyer committees to defend violators in some cities

Sees Cause Aided

Their cause has been immeasurably aided too, they contend by such incidents as the sending of a Michigan woman to prison for life for selling a pint of gin by the public indignation over the wanton killing of an Illinois mother before the eyes of her small son a search later revealing only a small quantity of home made wine in the house the coast guard sinking of the I'm Alone 200 miles at sea and lastly by the indictment and charges brought against members of congress

All this the wets argue is so much grist for their mill and they intend to make the most of it when the opportunity arises in congress

Meanwhile the wets point out that since President Coolidge made the Jones act a law one month ago today action has been started in a number of state legislatures to repeal state enforcement acts and throw the entire burden of enforcement upon the federal government

A warm fight is impending in the Missouri legislature for repeal of the state enforcement act It was introduced by Representative Tafferty of Kansas City with the remark that if the legislature votes as it drinks there is victory ahead

Other State Actions

In Wisconsin the voters go to the polls today to express their opinion in a popular referendum as to whether the Severson state enforcement act should be repealed and also whether the penalties for sale and manufacture of beverages containing not more than 2 75 per cent alcohol should be eliminated

Michigan has repealed its 'life for a pint' law since the enactment of the Jones act

In Illinois following the Aurora killing the wets overcame the normally dry majority in the legislature and succeeded in getting a bill to repeal the state enforcement act on the legislative calendar the first wet victory in the Illinois legislature in some years

In New York a coalition of Republican and Democratic wets voted down a state enforcement code

How much of this may be directly traced to the Jones act is by no means clear to observers but the wets somewhat gleefully point to the chain of events of the last month and claim it is significant

Meanwhile both wets and drys are closely watching the White House for announcement of the personnel of President Hoover's fact finding commission which is to investigate the whole wide field of law enforcement or lack of it

Congressman Michaelson Goes on Trial on May 6

C[illegible]cago Representative Appears in Federal Building and Posts $2,000 Bond

CONGRESSMAN MICHAELSON

[illegible]ICAGO, April 2—Congressman M. A. Michaelson, who had been [illegible] for three days on charges of [illegible] liquor into the country, [illegible] on trial at Key West during [illegible]ral court term opening on May [illegible] was announced today following [illegible] congressman's surrender to federal [illegible]rities here.

[illegible] at the time to be on his [illegible] Jacksonville, Fla., to surrender [illegible] Congressman Michaelson [illegible] appeared at the federal [illegible] here yesterday and posted his [illegible] bond.

As the special session of Congress [illegible] still will be in progress when [illegible] court convenes at Key West, [illegible] is a question as to whether [illegible] can claim congressional [illegible] and thus obtain a postponement.

The ceremonies yesterday were all [illegible] secret and mysterious, on the [illegible] of both Michaelson and the [illegible]rities. The congressman went [illegible] into the office of United [illegible] Marshal Henry C. W. Laubenheimer.

[illegible] he and Assistant U. S. District Attorney Edward A. Tappy went [illegible] United States Commissioner [illegible] K. Walker. The warrant was [illegible].

Michaelson waived examination, [illegible] four $500 bills for his bond and walked back out again. It all took about five minutes.

The indictment had been returned in Jacksonville, Fla., and charged that a year ago Michaelson had used his "courtesy of the port" as a congressman to smuggle liquor into Key West.

LODGED IN JAIL

Upper Sandusky Man Suspected in Theft of Guns

UPPER SANDUSKY, April 2 — Arthur Fleck is lodged in the Wyandot county jail on a charge of being implicated in the robbery at the Stucky & Benton implement store Thursday night. Loot amounting to nearly $700 is reported missing from the store. This includes an L. C. Smith trap gun, the property of Thomas R. Benton, valued at $225, and a Winchester trap gun belonging to Fred Stuckey, valued at $175. Other articles missing were two gun cases, one Remington automatic shot gun, rifle and a 20 gauge shotgun.

The guns were not missed until late Friday afternoon when Stuckey and Benton were preparing to leave on a trap shoot.

Another person is suspected to be implicated in the theft, it is reported.

O.S.U. Fraternity Demands Real Athletes as Members

COLUMBUS, April 2—Among the hundred or more social, professional and honorary fraternities at Ohio State University, there is one group which has a very exclusive membership and only a few persons have qualified for membership into it.

That fraternity is Sigma Delta Psi, national honorary athletic fraternity and to gain membership a student must be an athlete of great versatility. Because one student is an All-American player of the gridiron or extremely efficient on the basketball court or the cinder track, does not make him an eligible candidate for Sigma Delta Psi. Instead the student must be an all-around athlete and accomplish certain requirements in 11 events designated by the national chapter of Sigma Delta Psi.

It is not necessary for candidates to complete all of their tests at one time or even one scholastic year, but the tryouts can extend over the entire college course, if desired. Tryouts are generally held during the annual winter carnival of the intramural department and during the spring term of school.

He rare the tests which an athlete must pass successfully in order to become affiliated in the fraternity:

1. 100-yard dash in 11 and 3-5 seconds.
2. 200-yard low hurdles in 31 seconds.
3. Running high jump for a mark of 5 feet.
4. Running broad jump for a distance of 17 feet.
5. Put a 16-pound shot 30 feet or more in proportion to the candidate's weight.
6. Pole vault 8 feet, 6 inches.
7. Throw a baseball 250 feet.
8. Punt a football 120 feet.
9. Swim 100 yards in 2 minutes.
10. Run one mile in 6 minutes.
11. Execute successfully a front handspring; hand-stand for 10 seconds, and be able to vault a fence the height of one's chin.

Any member of a Varsity team may substitute his sport for any requirement in the Sigma Delta Psi events. He cannot, however, substitute swimming.

Tank cars form one link in the distribution chain that brings you Sohio. Left, a typical scene at the Cleveland and Toledo refineries; Standard worker sealing filling dome on tank car.

Tank car arriving at one of Standard's 300 Bulk Stations before distribution to service stations and dealers. At the bulk station filling dome seals are broken and contents of car rigidly inspected.

SOHIO quality is SEALED IN at the refinery!

IN order that your motor may receive the full benefit of the unique quality of Sohio, Red Crown and other Standard Oil (Ohio) products, the most exacting precautions are taken to guard and preserve this quality at every step from the refinery to your gasoline tank.

At the refineries, each tank car is carefully inspected before being filled. After filling, seals are applied to the filling dome. Thus Sohio quality is sealed in. At the Bulk Station seals are removed. Again the car and its contents undergo a rigid inspection. If there is any evidence of a broken seal or of a seal tampered with, the car and its load are immediately rejected.

Painstaking care, constant checking, frequent inspection—these first establish and then preserve for you the superior quality of all Standard Oil (Ohio) products.

Test Sohio in your own car. See what this difference means to your motor! Sohio is sold at 700 Standard Red-White-and-Blue Service Stations and by thousands of dealers throughout Ohio.

RED CROWN GASOLINE

The same standards of care and uniformity also control the manufacture and distribution of Red Crown. We make Red Crown ourselves, in the same great plants that produce Sohio, because our customers are educated to a better grade of fuel than ordinary motor gasolines such as we might buy in the open market.

Captain Sir Hubert Wilkins is planning a trip to the North pole by submarine. Wouldn't suicide by dynamite or nitroglycerin be simpler and far less expensive?

It now develops that the affidavit of the informer on which the Mr. and Mrs. John Doe search warrant was issued in the Aurora, Illinois, killing was based on hearsay. The passing days have in no way ameliorated public resentment aroused by the atrocity.

A newspaper up in Detroit is insisting that that city must have a subway. In view of the volume and speed of its motor traffic, it's a cinch Detroit should either have some method of underground travel or equip its citizens with wings.

Senator Johnson is out in an attack on the Root court plan, holding that it means a roundabout way of dragging us into the League of Nations. Maybe so, but we have sometimes felt that possibly "Uncle Hiram" may be prejudiced against the court idea; not violently, of course, but just a wee bit.

For speeding in defiance of the traffic laws of Panama, the Panaman police arrested General Malin Craig, commander of the Panama canal department, who was out of uniform at the time and wearing plus fours. The way it looks from this distance is that the general was apprehended for the lesser offense.

While the new Italian cruiser, Trento, was making thirty-eight knots in a speed trial, Saturday, Italy's new submarine, Mameli, reached a depth of 353.37 feet. Mr. Mussolini will probably point out in his consistently modest, unassuming way, that it's some glory-crowned achievement for the honor and majesty of unified Italy when she can cop out two marine records in one day.

Speaking of "The Front Page," which it wants censored, the London Spectator says: "In an ordinary civilized community the reporters in the play would be kicked out of every decent newspaper office." If their vulgarity and grossness is as great as has been attributed to them by reports, it's pretty safe to say that they would be kicked out of any decent newspaper office over here.

The changing of the name of the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne to the Avenue du Marechal Foch speaks as scarcely anything else would of the high esteem of Paris for the late marshal of France. Changing the names of avenues in honor notables is common in Paris, but they are no such avenues as that leading from the Arch of Triumph to the great park and playground of the Parisians.

Community Chest Organization.

It is decidedly pleasing to this newspaper to note the progress which has been made toward the establishment of a community chest for Marion. We do not experience any special glow because of the fact that we have editorially championed the community chest plan and exploited at some length in news columns its successful working in other cities, but simply and purely because we believe the plan the best possible way of dispensing philanthropy; best because of the fact that it lessens imposition upon the charitable public by doing away with duplications, because it lessens time and effort in securing funds and because it lessens the money cost of soliciting and collecting them, just as set out in the talk of Secretary Arch Mandel, of the Dayton community service organization, at the Marion club just Saturday night, and as editorially outlined on this page several months ago.

In any such movement as the present, it is necessary for some one, or some group, to set about and effect an organization. An organization, and one well officered, is an absolute essential to the effective working of the community chest plan. This was accomplished at the meeting of Saturday night. We believe that the officials chosen will measure up to expectations, but no matter what their ability may be as executives, to attain success they must have the cheerful, active support of the committees to be named and the good will and support of the community. They should have both. They are entitled to both. They are working for the public good; working to save it annoyance, working to save its time and to save it money.

Had we a suggestion as to how the organization should proceed, we would not offer it for the reason that our observation has convinced us that any organization is able to proceed to the best advantage when untrammeled by suggestions, which possibly, very probably, may be utterly out of line with the policy it has adopted. We can recall cases where too many suggestions have proved almost as much of a handicap as the multiplicity of committees with which some organizations of the past have been encumbered.

Myron T. Herrick.

There can be little doubt that the death of Myron T. Herrick, United States ambassador to France, was hastened alike by his desire and what he considered his duty to do honor to the memory of the World war generalissimo, Marshal Foch. Had he not walked, bare-headed, as is the French custom, from Notre Dame to the Invalides in the funeral cortege of the idolized French commander and remained in the chilly air for three hours during the funeral ceremonies, he probably would be alive today. He must have realized that there would be hazard in such a course to one of his years whose constitution had been weakened by several spells of severe illness and a number of operations in recent years, but no doubt he looked upon participation in the funeral rites as a duty which he owed alike to his own country and the country to which he was accredited and, consistent with his entire career, he bowed to duty's call.

The product of a log cabin who made his way to a position of honor and affluence, a college graduate as the result of his own endeavors, a lawyer, a banker, president of one of Ohio's big banking institutions, a shrewd financier, governor of Ohio, tendered the Italian ambassadorship by Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt, which tenders he declined, and twice appointed to the Paris embassy first in 1912 by President Taft and again in 1921 by President Harding—this, with two marked omissions, is a concise outline of the public career of Myron T. Herrick, mourned alike in France and America today.

The first marked omission came during the world struggle, at the time the steady German advance caused the French government heads to move to Bordeaux and establish the capital of the republic there. Mr. Herrick's refusal to leave Paris at that time, his determination to hold on and look after not only American interests, but the British, Japanese and Turkish embassies and do all in his power to save Paris from pillage and her public monuments and art works from destruction as well, won to him the admiration of the whole world. His was the course of a courageous man, and he followed it courageously.

With the second notable omission to which we have referred the entire world is perfectly familiar as it was linked with the epoch-making flight of Lindbergh. When Mr. Herrick remained in Paris after the flight of the French government, he showed courage. His handling of Lindbergh was a manifestation of diplomacy. One of Lindbergh's years can hardly be credited with having intuitively manifested the tact he displayed during his stay in Paris, Brussels and London. The course which caused his recognition as a masterly ambassador of good will demonstrated careful, though hurried, tutoring. And by whom other than the accredited ambassador to the French republic? Mr. Herrick may have had exceptional material with which to work, but his product was most decidedly exceptional, as Lindbergh stood all the severe tests imposed without a single slip.

It is said of Mr. Herrick that he was more highly esteemed by the French people as a whole than any American ambassador since Franklin, and it is no more than natural that he should have been, for his love for France and her people was very probably greater than that of any American ambassador to Paris, Franklin included. In fact, it has been said of him that, although he could speak but few words of their tongue, he was more French in heart and thought than the French themselves, and occasionally this great friendship he had for France was voiced against him as an ambassador. But no such utterances is heard today as he lies cold in death. Today two peoples forget any failing in this regard he may have had and, remembering his many known virtues, sorrow in his passing.

A Buffalo man escaped death when his boat upset in the Niagara river only to be drowned in his bathtub into which he had fallen when overcome by gas fumes. It's a decidedly odd old life we life.

Mr Pyle's second great merchandizing and amusement transcontinental trek, which has already been inaugurated out of New York, can hardly leave room for doubt of the immense stride this country is making toward enlightenment and culture.

Prince Carol tells his mother, Dowager Queen Marie, that he will not attempt to regain the throne of Roumania which he surrendered to live with the auburn-haired young woman for whom he deserted his wife and son, the present King Michael. Carol is showing more judgment than he has been credited with possessing.

Artists of High Merit.

The two young people who appeared in concert at the Marion theater, Monday night—Vivian Long, of this city, and Walberg Brown, a former resident, but now of Cleveland—should be pleased with the enthusiastic appreciation of their numbers manifested by their audience. It goes without the saying, that Marion lovers of music are proud of both of them.

It is not the intent herein to particularize regarding the ability of Miss Long as a vocalist or Mr. Brown as a violinist, our idea being merely to reflect the community's recognition of them as the possessors of artistic ability of high merit in their respective lines. And this recognition is not accorded them in any degree because of the fact that they grew up in this community, but wholly by reason of the artistry which is unquestionably theirs.

It will be pleasing for Marion people to follow up their careers and take pride in the successes they achieve. After Monday night's concert which proved a revelation to many of those present, Marion's interest in the futures of Miss Long and Mr. Brown is bound to endure.

Excessive Fatigue a Warning.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

How good the bed feels after a day of hard work! There is nothing like honest fatigue to give you a night of quiet, refreshing sleep. To get up in the morning with the desire to dance and sing is the enviable lot of perfectly healthy, right living persons in youth and early adult life.

It is natural to grow tired after a full day of toil, physical or mental. That is the feeling you should expect to experience.

But to get up in the morning just as tired as you were on going to bed is not natural. It is not a feeling that should be passed over as of little importance.

Unaccustomed fatigue and loss of ease in carrying the unusual load of daily duties is a state of affairs that demands attention. There is something wrong with you and you should find out what it is.

Little children are in everlasting motion if they are healthy. The energy and activity of a young child are amazing.

Some time ago I was a caller at a home where there was a son about four years of age. We sat on the veranda, which was ten or twelve steps above the lawn. That boy must have gone down these steps and returned at least twenty times during the hour I was there. Each time he came back with a tale about some wild beast he had seen in the yard. I didn't know there were so many varieties of ferocious animals in the world.

Any normal youngster can keep up such efforts for hours every day. You don't need to be told there would be something wrong if a day came along when he refused to play and demanded to be held on the lap of his mother.

Once in a while I see a senator, usually full of life, holding his head or leaning back in his chair for a half hour at a stretch. He is tired out and probably hates to admit it. In the cloak-room it is not unusual to see a tired legislator stretched out on a couch, attempting to get back his energy.

If there is a real excuse for fatigue, it is all right to experience the feeling. But if there is no explanation for being terribly tired, something is wrong.

Let us see what are legitimate excuses for being tired: Hard physical labor, continued mental effort, unusual work of any sort. Any one of these causes would explain satisfactorily the sense of fatigue.

But if the things that have a right to make you tired have not been done, something is wrong. To be tired out morning, noon and night, all the time, is a sign of trouble. Where is it?

Many a person is suffering the effects of a hidden infection. There may be abscessed teeth where the inflammation is so slight as not to be noticed at all. This is a common cause for lowered vitality, with excessive tiredness as the chief symptom.

Lack of nourishing food or a well-chosen diet, may result in undernourishment with inability to do the usual work. You just can't do your duties unless you are properly fed.

Constipation or failure of the kidneys to carry away the wastes of the body—both these conditions are capable of lessening vitality, with fatigue as a symptom.

If you are tired more than you should be, find out why. You are out of order.

Editorial Opinion.

A FRUIT OF RADICALISM.

The impeachment mill in Oklahoma continues to grind. Governor Johnston had not been ousted twenty-four hours before the investigating committee of the lower branch of the legislature adopted impeachment charges against the chief justice of Oklahoma and two of his colleagues in the supreme court. Johnston was the second governor to be impeached and removed from office since Oklahoma was organized as a state in 1907, and the third against whom impeachment proceedings had been started. This unenviable experience of the Sooner state with officials requiring such drastic disciplinary measures might possibly be traced to "the best state constitution ever written." Anything that was radical was good to William Jennings Bryan, who had a hand in drafting the document he praised so highly.

The constitution of Oklahoma requires the primary system for all offices in the state; and sets up the initiative and referendum for all classes of legislation. A law passed by the people can not be vetoed by the governor. Other radical devices are employed to undermine representative government and give to the people the blessings of pure democracy. They are protected from the rapacity or general incompetency of their elected officials by safeguards unknown in most of the older states. The high rate of official mortality among them suggests this question: When the people retain such elaborate control of government in their own hands, are they likely to be as careful in the selection of officials as the people of states are, where this control is more remote? When that vigilance is relaxed with respect to the type of candidate thrown up by the direct primaries the impeachment mill has an abundance of grist brought to it. The processes of representative government and pure democracy do not mix successfully.—Detroit Free Press.

HARNESSING THE BAY

When the project of developing power for industry from the tides of Passamaquoddy bay was first proposed it seemed fantastical to many. But now between $400,000 and $500,000 has been spent in experiments and the voters of Maine believe in it. In a referendum two years ago they decided that Dexter P. Cooper, the hydraulic engineer, should have a charter.

Before the Boston section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers Moses B. Pike, assistant to Mr. Cooper, talked about the Maine-New Brunswick enterprise and illustrated his lecture with slides. The great rise and fall of the tides in Passamaquoddy bay make their harnessing practicable. Two gigantic basins are to be developed, and the power will be generated by the sea water in its fall from the one to the other. Inflow and outflow will be controlled by hundreds of gates of a new design on the "Venturi meter" principle.

Of the resulting horse-power to be converted into electricity, New Brunswick's share will be a 110,000 volt line. About twice that amount will be conveyed to Massachusetts. Maine industries are to use the rest. The total is estimated at 500,000 to 700,000 horsepower. Ultimate cost of construction and equipment will be not less than $75,000,000, and may reach $100,000,000.—New York Times.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York April 2—Something about New York creates an insatiable hunger for publicity. Men and women caught in the impelling insanity of its spell not only make themselves superbly ridiculous but sacrifice [illegible] to splash on the front page.

Who outside New York—could be found [illegible] Browning for instance? Here was a man born to wealth and culture who showed amazing aptitude for business. Yet [illegible] entranced seeing his name in print he hired a press agent and indulged in antics that made him an international topic [illegible] jest.

The Earl Carroll bathtub incident was the tragic climax of a rising taste for headlines. Publicity has inspired actresses to face pneumonia gamboling through snow barefoot in Central park, to "fake" suicide and risk their necks climbing flag poles. Picture newspapers added fuel to the craze.

Nothing is too intimate for exploitation. New Yorkers mortgage homes to "dunk the body" in Palm Beach waves in their ache for the rotogravure sections. Speakeasies line their walls with caricatures of those with the spotlight phobia. Even the liason is glorified.

Broadway, especially, always has a picaresque freebooter out to gain fleshly enjoyments, power and fame through the newspaper puff. More than likely he is one of those arch-swindlers who has mastered the shadiest technique in Wall street, but he backs a show or supper club and becomes a celeb.

The late "Diamond Jim" Brady was a conspicuous example of the growing guild. He was an astute business man who piled up millions. Yet nightly he decorated himself in a fantastic array of jewels to strut up and down theater aisles at first nights with a Dolly sister on each arm.

From Jim Fisk to Arnold Rothstein, the White way has had an outstanding figure, with few morals and less manners, upon whom it bestows its mantle of fame. It haloes them with mystery and grandeur and people, fascinated by the glamour, long to know them—even indeed to become familiars.

There are several press agencies whose chief activities are devoted, sub rosa, to making celebrities. The clients are mostly newly rich longing to give the tail of the metropolitan lion a twist. They are ballyhooed by "stunts"—outfitting a trick apartment, giving dinners to frayed noblemen or authoring a "ghost written" novel. Many pay as high as $50,000 a year for such exploitation.

There is a type of Manhattan buccaneer, who despite frequent exposures rarely fails to find his galaxy of shining marks yearly. This year he took more than a dozen from the Social Register for a buggy ride. He works carefully and with precision.

No matter how strict the by-laws he wiggles into an exclusive club. His profession is vaguely defined as "in the street." He is a prince of entertainers and always sending clusters of orchids to wives of new acquaintances.

His is "the smart racket." When he has collected sheep for the shearing, he gives them a rush phone call. He is on the inside of a warm one and if they'll hurry the check he will include them in the loot. They usually fall.

A critic of Broadway plays complains all the musical plays these days are only for the young who like vodeo-do boo-boop-a-doop and collegiate stamping. Well, as one of the old front row rams I don't care that for lavender and old lace sentiment or seventeenth century swashbucklers storming the moated castle. I like to cup an ear and imagine myself the handsome young man in white flannels with oiled hair stepping out from the bevy of girls, to sing: "Why make a fuss over me?" Then they wheel me home.

Do You Walk?

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

The walking season is open. How many will take advantage of it? How many even know that it has any advantages. Everybody rides—for use, for haste, for speed, for pleasure, for fun, for excitement, for fashion, for vanity, for laziness. Nobody walks who can possibly get a ride. Walking is frowned on as an infringement of the rights of the road. Walkers are looked upon as "jays," and classed with other nuisances. "Hit-and-run" drivers curse walkers under their breath, and set them down as trouble-makers invading the king's highways—the king being the man behind the wheel, and the highways the city streets there are.

Streets and even country roads are no longer safe for walking. But, thank heaven, there are paths and by-ways still free for the pedestrian. And part of the time he is safe on sidewalks. If people generally knew the immense benefits that walking gives to its votaries, the present situation would be changed very quickly, no matter what the cost.

Henry Ford has been proclaimed a great benefactor because he made automobiles cheap and plentiful. A far greater benefactor would be the man who could make walking equally popular, and render people as proud of their pedestrian powers as of their motors. Walking is the chief of the doctors. It is the greatest health-giver and health-preserver that we know anything about. It does good to muscle and nerve alike. It has saved and prolonged many a life. It has made invalids well, and prevented other persons from becoming invalids. It is the most effective of heart stimulants. It is the greatest blood tonic in existence. It is the greatest brain tonic. It is the mother of ideas and the nurse of thought.

There are many varieties of walking, all more or less good, but all to be used with judgment. There is the brisk walk that sets the heart thumping and the blood racing. That is not for everybody, nor for all occasions and circumstances. For one thing it demands pure, cool, stimulating air. It is all right for a person of vigorous habit. It strengthens lungs and heart, but nobody should overdo it.

Then, there is the pleasant "promenade," neither fast nor slow, a sensible, dignified, one might say aristocratic use of the legs. Not everybody can do this kind of walk gracefully without considerable practice. It specially fits and becomes ladies. When representatives of the two sexes promenade together in pairs, this walk modifies itself into strolling. But the stroll is equally suitable for everybody who has a little time to spare. It is well to spare the time "for the stomach's sake," because a gentle stroll after a meal aids digestion. But it must not be a fast movement; nothing to agitate the blood, but rather something that affords just sufficient change of scene and moderate muscular motion to starve off lethargy and a feeling of somnolence. A hard, fast walk right after a meal is often dangerous and always, I believe, more or less injurious.

But the thinking walk is the most interesting of all. It has no fixed gait. It may be fast, it may be slow, it may be a moderate perambulation or a steady tramp or long march. In any case it is shut round with an atmosphere of thought. The brain seems in a state of well-being, active, vigorous, clear, spontaneous in action and full of originality. New thoughts pour in, happy expressions for them present themselves unbidden, a kind of natural logic governs everything and invention becomes so easy that one may mistake himself for a genius. I think that any "brain-worker" will tell you that his best starter when he finds himself stalled is to get up and walk, even if it is only around the room. Other physical exercise, like wood chopping, is historically known to have similar effects upon the activity of the brain; but walking is the best of all, and walking if possible out of doors in pure invigorating air, and preferably amid pleasant surroundings.

I do not believe there is any town or city in the land that has not some good walks around it. Would that they were utilized for all that they are worth.—Copyright, 1929 International Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

The American people will be interested, or at least ought to be interested, in the proposal to add two members to the cabinet. This may not come about, but it is at least being discussed by those in authority in the government. The idea is to have a secretary of public works and a secretary of education. These would make important departments, and there is room for much work. But it is well to keep in mind that efficiency sometimes decreases in proportion to the number of men engaged.

If there is to be a new member in the cabinet, our best suggestion is that he be a secretary of education. It would take a wise man, and one astonishingly well qualified, to fill this position competently. For who knows what education is? And who knows what it ought to be? We know fairly well what sort of teaching and training are to be had in the schools and we know what passes for education. But education is something over and beyond the average type of schooling.

To give boys and girls the right attitude toward the life they are beginning, and to give them discipline and the sense of moral responsibility—these are the great tasks of education.

Speaking of cabinets, one notices that cabinet members speak now and then over the radio. That is a perfectly good idea. In England those most responsible for the quality of the government are more responsive to the people. Cabinets rise and fall more frequently at the people's will. We contemplate no change for the purpose of modeling our government after that of Great Britain, but we should indeed welcome all the means which will bring those in authority in our government into closer and more frequent contact with the people.

The racketeer is the man who proposes to live without legitimate work. He proposes to prey on others who do work. Nothing is beneath him. He has no ethics and no scruples. He proceeds on the unspoken theory of the beast of prey—"to get his." The racketeer is simply a barbarian. He is a modern man who has has reverted to savagery. There is no recognition on his part that civilization has come to the world. He is living in the past. Having done no good thinking and good living, he has made no adjustment to the new world.

Floods Threaten Middle West

CHICAGO, April 2—New flood menace arose in a half dozen mid-western states today, following one of the most destructive [storm]s to visit this section in years.

The storm blew out of the south[we]st on Easter Sunday and for 24 hours deluged states in the Mississippi valley with a combination of rain, hail and snow.

Small streams emptying into the Father of Waters in Missouri, Iowa and Illinois, already at flood stage, swelled to alarming proportions with the additional three inches of precipitation.

Hundreds of men were patrolling the Mississippi river levees protecting northeast Missouri and southeast Iowa. Streams in southwestern Illinois also were on a rampage.

The Mississippi at Quincy, Ill., today had reached the 20 foot stage and serious breaks in the dikes up and down on the Missouri side were feared momentarily. Canton, Mo., is already surrounded by water and several factories there have had to close down.

Much damage was done in other sections by the severe gale that accompanied the storm. In Wisconsin alone the property damage has been placed at $1,000,000. Communication and power lines broke under the weight of ice and snow and many communities were completely cut off for hours.

Illinois and Indiana were also hard hit. At Indianapolis the wind reached a velocity of 60 miles an hour and smashed in plate glass windows, tore down wires and unroofed a few houses.

New York Stores Hit by Wind

NEW YORK, April 2—Storekeepers in New York and New Jersey were busy today boarding up windows blown out by a cyclonic wind storm which whirled through streets and country roads last night.

Plate glass windows were broken and signs dislodged all over the city. Jean Nash, 23, was cut on the face, hand and shoulders when a window was blown through as she passed, showering glass down upon her. News stands in Times Square, Park Row and elsewhere in the city were blown from their stations.

Destruction was caused by the wind in many parts of New Jersey. Instances were reported of automobiles almost being blown off the road.

Faulty wiring is believed to have caused the fire.

legislature that an additional gas tax has been levied against the Ohio motorists.

Four years ago the general assembly passed a bill providing for a two cent gasoline tax of which the state now receives 47 per cent.

During the session two years ago the solons increased the tax to three cents. The state receives all of this third cent.

With the increased measures the state would receive about $21,000,000 a year.

The Ohio Automobile association, which was probably the strongest opponent of the bill, announced through its officers that it will continue its fight against the one cent increase.

Follows Two Conferences

Governor Cooper's announcement of support came after two conferences held yesterday.

Despite the fact that it was known in various circles that Governor Cooper had no alternative except to support the bill, the conferences took up the better part of the day.

In taking this action the chief executive executed a sharp right about face from his previous stand, when he declared that he favored the general revenue fund as it now stands.

The governor had tried to stay in the middle of the road, but slowly he leaned to the appropriation from the general revenue force, and then careened sideways again and skidded across the highway to align himself with the agricultural and increased gas tax interests.

Twins End Brief Life in Tiny, Pink-Lined Caskets

TWIN babes that have closed their eyes in a rest from the struggles of six months life are asleep in [illegible] white twin caskets lined in pink at the W. C. [illegible] funeral home, South Main st., where they have been lying since their death yesterday morning.

Herbert Clark and Alfred Emmanuel Smith, the six months old twins of Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, Adams and Bartram sts., believed to be the only colored twins ever born in the city, died yesterday morning after a short illness of intestinal influenza.

At 4:30 o'clock Monday morning Alfred gasped his last short little breath and died, and at 11 o'clock his twin, Herbert, died. Mr. Smith thinks that perhaps Herbert, being the stronger physically of the two, might have lived if it had not been for the [illegible] of sympathetic [illegible] uniting [the]m.

The babies look as if they had dropped to sleep and would soon awaken from their bed of pink silk, dressed in their white baby [illegible]. Their heads [illegible] with soft calm [illegible] rest on pink silk cushions.

King's Daughters Benefit Show Scheduled Tonight

Tonight the first of four shows which the Myrtle Ross Players are presenting for the benefit of the Marion City Union of King's Daughters will be given at the Grand Theater. A matinee and night performance will be given Wednesday and a night performance Thursday.

The Climax is the Players' first well play to their Marion public and is a story full of heart interest, clean comedy and good lines.

The story deals with an Italian and his son, played by Manfred Gross and Billy Dale, who live in a tenement in a large city. Both are musically inclined and Dale is a composer of "The Song of the Soul." Myrtle Ross, a niece, possesses a lovely voice except that there are tones between the high and low notes that do not satisfy her and which mar her career as a singer.

A doctor, Ernest Sharpsteen, loves the girl and agrees to treat her throat and eliminate the defect. In secret, realizing that if she clears these tones she will become famous and lose her interest in him, he gives her a fluid to spray her throat which entirely ruins her voice.

The girl is not aware that it is the medicine which has caused her voice to give way but gradually she stops using the spray.

At the piano one day she asks Billy to play this wonderful composition of his and to the amazement of everyone and herself she sings as she had never done before, full throated and beautifully.

Explanations follow and the play ends to the satisfaction of everyone.

The King's Daughters will receive a percentage on each ticket which is sold outside of the box office window at the theater and are urging people to purchase tickets from them. Proceeds go to the work which the circles do for the needy of the city.

Talented Young Musicians Acclaimed by Home-Town Audience at Local Theater

Miss Vivian Long and Walberg Brown Delight Hearers with Presentation of Voice and Violin Program Marking Them as Artists of Exceptional Ability

BY HALLIE HOUCK
Marion Star Staff Writer

Two natives one of a young girl who is studying abroad with a view of training her voice for grand opera and the other a young man who by effort and hard study in this country has achieved success were acclaimed by a capacity audience at the Marion theater when Miss Vivian Long and Walberg Brown gave a joint voice and violin concert there last night

The concert was Miss Long's first appearance here since she returned from two years study in Italy with Maestro Liccoli and also marked her debut to a great many of the audience. Mr Brown who lived here for several years is known to Marion, not only through the personal contact of his high school years here but through his broadcasting over WTAM Cleveland also

Miss Long appeared for the first number a group of three Italian songs gowned in red taffeta and tulle with a cluster of three roses at the waist

The applause for both first appearances of Miss Long and Mr Brown was long and sustained

An aria from "La Boheme" Puccini, "Caro Mio Ben" Giordani and "Non So Piu" "La Nozze di Figaro" Mozart were in her first group

Voice Is Expressive

Miss Long had an attractive stage presence singing with feeling and effect. Her voice ranging from a low [illegible] flat to a high [illegible] flat has much of the power which opera singing demands in its higher notes. Her voice was clear and sweet and the long prolonged notes showed the results of training or an Italian teacher

Mrs H K Mouser music chairman of the State Federation of Music clubs played the accompaniments for Miss Long's concert

A difficult and long composition "Concerto in E Minor" Jules Conus in three parts [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] third allegro was Walberg Brown's introduction to the [illegible]

Miss Wilhelmine Pixler of Cincinnati of the faculty of the Cincinnati Conservatory accompanied Mr Brown at the piano

Dressed in her costume for the title role "Lucia di Lammermoor" with a long blond wig Miss Long appeared and sang an aria from the mad scene of the opera

This song brought out the acting ability of the young woman when she portrayed the role of Lucia forced by her brother to marry a man whom he had chosen when she had already become engaged to Edgar kills her husband on the night of the marriage and loses her reason. In the mad scene she imagines she is going through the marriage ceremony with Edgar. At times she sees a phantom—at times she is almost rational but finally the strain proves too great and she falls in a dead faint

The aria opened with a high stereal high scream with which Miss Long appeared on the stage throwing a stained dagger from her. Her acting was remarkable and showed a depth of feeling which is necessary in singers who aspire to operatic careers

Following a short intermission Mr Brown played two numbers "On Wings of Song" Mendelssohn and Dance Espagnole Sarasate. Miss Long sang two songs in German, [illegible] [illegible] brought [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Schumann and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Song from [illegible] [illegible]

Encores for the preceding numbers were Rugado [illegible] [illegible] by Miss Long and Persian [illegible] Gluck arranged by Zimbalist [illegible] [illegible] played by Mr Brown

As a final encore Miss Long and Mr Brown appeared together [illegible] [illegible] The Rosary Mr Mouser at the piano

At the close of Miss Long's rendition of the mad scene from "Lucia" ushers presented her with two large baskets of lilies and roses and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] and sweet peas

WHAT TERRIBLE EVIL LAY BEHIND ITS MASK?

BY HERMAN LANDON

NINETEEN

An Interruption

MALLINGHAM had not been quite [illegible] with Horace Peters [illegible] he wanted to be alone. His expression after he had left him hinted strongly [illegible] time for reflection was [illegible] at the hour for action had [illegible]. There was no trace of [illegible] in his cold gray eye [illegible] hesitation. He was all [illegible] peaceful watching [illegible] in the hidden drama of Mallingham was about to un[illegible]

[illegible] remained seated for a time after [illegible] had left him smoking one [illegible] another of the very thin and [illegible] cigarettes which were made [illegible] for him. From time to [illegible] glanced at his watch. Once [illegible] to the door and looked [illegible] the hall. Save for the [illegible] of the tempest everything [illegible]. Since it was now well [illegible] it was probable that [illegible] had retired. There was [illegible] person Mallingham was [illegible] about and that was John the caretaker. Possibly how[illegible] had found Curry by this [illegible] else he had abandoned the [illegible]. In either event Mallingham had nothing to fear from [illegible] minded fellow.

He opened his traveling bag, pressing a little spring at the [illegible] brought a hidden rece[illegible]. From this he took a small but efficient pistol, examined the [illegible] with an expert eye and [illegible] it into his pocket. Next he [illegible] a pair of gloves of a very thin flexible material, then darkened [illegible] and stepped out in the hall. [illegible] Peters occupied the third [illegible] from his own and for a moment [illegible] at the door and listened. [illegible] heavy silence satisfied him that [illegible] man was sleeping. Making scarcely a sound he went [illegible] stair [illegible] began [illegible] down he stopped [illegible] was [illegible] producing an incessant [illegible] clamor on the roof. Though [illegible] constructed the house shook [illegible] in the gale. There were [illegible] of movements about the [illegible] however and Mallingham [illegible] his way. He entered [illegible] library illuminated only by a few embers in the fireplace and [illegible] toward the door in the [illegible]

In a moment he was inside the [illegible] with the door closed behind [illegible] he breathed somewhat more [illegible]. It would have been awk[illegible] if he should have met [illegible] one [illegible]. He touched a [illegible] and a light flashed up in the [illegible] illuminating the full length [illegible] of the small corridor. The [illegible] thing that caught his eye was [illegible] clock over the iron door. He [illegible] at it with a faintly trium[illegible] expression as if it were a thing [illegible] longer mystified him.

"Fourteen minutes to 3," he mum[illegible] "I'm a little early."

He took another cigaret from his [illegible]. The clock continued to hold [illegible] as he touched a match to [illegible]

"This ought to make Old Winthrop [illegible] over in his grave [illegible] he that amused him while [illegible]

He swung round [illegible] to speak [illegible] had [illegible] opened. For that [illegible] faced with [illegible] the bed [illegible]

[illegible] Julia [illegible] the bar and the [illegible] her was disappro[illegible]. "Why aren't you sleeping?"

"What are you doing here?" he countered.

A subterfuge was on Mallingham's lips but he held it back. He [illegible] that once with [illegible] she had found him there [illegible] well face the issue.

"Wait and you will see," [illegible] calmly told her.

Her pale-blue eyes were [illegible] alarm. The light figure [illegible] within her Japanese [illegible] gown. Her mouth—which Mallingham had always thought a trifle [illegible] pronounced for perfect [illegible] quivered a little at the corners.

"You—you aren't going [illegible] the iron door."

"Why not?"

"You mustn't, Julian [illegible] ture of [illegible] loveli[illegible]. You know what will happen."

"I don't and neither do [illegible]"

"No but we have [illegible] it will be something—something terrible, Ernest. I thought you promised—"

"I promised to do nothing reckless. I am living up to that promise." For a moment he gazed steadily at the clock above the iron door. "You know I didn't come out here to admire the scenery. It was [illegible] that we should do a little quiet investigating. I don't intend to [illegible] any longer. I don't quite like the appearance of things, Julia. I'm going [illegible] tonight. It will be perfectly safe. I know what I am doing."

She drew in her breath sharply. Her pale blue eyes were wild with [illegible] "I'm afraid, Ernest," she said [illegible] "I feel there will be terrible consequences if you touch that door. Oh—please don't. Where is [illegible]

[illegible] "In [illegible] careful [illegible] many ways, but I don't [illegible] I [illegible] go ahead [illegible] with this disturbing [illegible]. Now that you are here, however, [illegible] might as well remain. [illegible] see something interesting."

"I'm terribly frightened, Ernest." She placed her white [illegible] on his [illegible] "I'm frightened [illegible] sake. Please, Ernest——"

Impatiently Mallingham shook off her hand. "None of that," he said. [illegible] "Either pull yourself together [illegible] or [illegible] leave me [illegible]. Why didn't you stay in bed?"

"I knew I couldn't sleep. So many things [illegible]. I was thinking about Hannan. You haven't told me what happened to him."

"Because I don't know. How many times must I tell you that? Anyway what is Hannan to [illegible]"

"Oh I know, but —— Well, I shan't ask any more questions. I only wish you wouldn't [illegible] this thing tonight. Why not [illegible] until tomorrow? Oh Ernest——" She flung out her hands beseechingly.

Mallingham pushed her roughly aside. "Keep still or get out. You are hysterical. Better run along now."

"No, I shall stay here with you." Of a sudden her voice sounded very faint and meek. "Whatever happens to you will happen to me also. I shall stay but I promise not to argue any more. Only I'm afraid—afraid——"

Mallingham's mood changed. From his impressive height he smiled down upon her. "Brace up," he said gently. "The trouble with you is that you have Old Winthrop and his infernal contraptions on the brain. He has hypnotized you with his mysterious hocus-pocus. Just remember that he is dead and that dead men can't harm anybody."

She smiled faintly but the smile [illegible] she [illegible] up at the clock [illegible] he [illegible] but he [illegible] the clock. "It's been running ever [illegible] and nobody knows what makes [illegible]. Can't you see, Ernest? Old Winthrop's deeds live after him—and that's what makes me afraid. There's [illegible] something uncanny, something [illegible]—"

"Nonsense!" Mallingham chuckled reassuringly. "It's all natural enough. [illegible] clock [illegible] you needn't [illegible] any longer. In [illegible] seven minutes it's going to [illegible]—for[illegible]"

She gasped. Her eyes starting up [illegible]. She stood [illegible] breathing.

"[illegible] we have a [illegible]—the door may be [illegible] as soon as the clock [illegible]" said Mallingham, regarding her [illegible] with amusement. "Old Winthrop's curse will have [illegible] after that. His ghost will be laid for good."

"Ye[illegible] The [illegible] scarcely [illegible]. What's going to stop the clock?"

"Something very simple. An ordinary alarm clock [illegible]"

She shook herself weakly. "You [illegible] to stop Old Winthrop's clock with an—an ordinary alarm clock. You are [illegible]"

"Not at all. An ordinary alarm clock will do the trick aided and abetted by a length of wire, a fuse, a dry cell and a quantity of explosive material. It's going to happen in exactly five minutes."

She stood staring at him out of big startled eyes. "I don't seem to understand. It sounds so ridiculous."

"All great truths sound ridiculous in the beginning. As you know, I have been thinking [illegible] recent weeks trying to unravel Old Winthrop's secret. I've had a theory for some time and I'm practically certain it's the correct one. Where do you suppose I went after dinner this evening?"

"How should I know? You came back drenched to the skin."

"Well, for once I didn't mind a drenching. I discovered several things. Among others I found an old shack a little distance up in the hills. It was packed to the roof with explosives. It seems that some years ago there was a project on foot to drill a tunnel through Old Blighty. The project was abandoned but a part of the explosives were never carted away. They came in very handy for me. I returned to the house and managed to sneak away a few [illegible] while nobody was looking. Among them was the old alarm clock. I went back up the hill and arranged for a little explosion [illegible] precisely [illegible] o'clock. We haven't long to wait."

Julia rubbed her temples. "I don't seem to understand a thing. Why at 3 o'clock?"

"No particular reason. [illegible] or 3 [illegible] would have done as well. I merely wanted it to come off at an hour when everybody would be asleep and I could take advantage of the explosion without fear of interruption."

She drew a long breath. "But why [illegible] want an explosion at all?"

"Because the explosion is going to stop Old Winthrop's clock."

"An explosion up in the hills?"

"Precisely. The thing that has kept Old Winthrop's clock running all this time extends way up into the hills. But I shan't try to explain any more. That overworked little brain of yours has had enough for one night. Besides, we have only one minute to wait."

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affection

BY ADELE GARRISON

Noel's Future Becomes Subject for Discussion

THE flash which Lillian's look had brought to my face deepened painfully as Harry Underwood turned to me with his demand to know why I disagreed with his [illegible] for committing Philip Veritzen to the production of Noel's musical drama for which I had promised to essay the libretto and lyrics. I had not realized that my tell-tale face had reflected the objections which my knowledge of Philip Veritzen's temperament had brought to mind.

"It's a wonderful scheme," I told him quickly, "and I see only one obstacle to it."

"Put a name to it," Mr. Underwood commanded theatrically as I hesitated.

"It lies in Mr. Veritzen's foolish obsession about his son marrying into the Hapsburg royal line," I said, and Lillian, sitting upright in her chair, struck the fist of one hand into the palm of the other.

"I see what you mean, Madge," she said. "She's right, Harry."

Mr. Underwood's eyes narrowed.

"I haven't feminine clairvoyance," he said impatiently.

"Or Madge's experience with God's gift to the theatrical profession," Lillian supplemented. "Therefore——"

He took the word from her mouth with an airy gesture of apology.

"Therefore, dearest girl, please tell me what it's all about in words suited to my feeble comprehension." His eyes were laughing at me but I knew that [illegible] was imperative both in grammar and spirit.

"You know doubtless that Mr. Veritzen [illegible] himself a Hapsburg through [illegible] and a [illegible] the present king of Transvania."

Mr. Underwood nodded.

"Yes, I've been told that fantastic tale," he said. "Oh! I don't mean I doubt it, although old Phil hasn't the famous Hapsburg nose."

"Much to his [illegible], I'm thinking," Lillian said, smiling.

"He professes to be glad that he hasn't it, and that he resembles his mother," I said.

"Well, we'll give him the benefit of the doubt," Mr. Underwood commented. "But may I ask what this has to do with the price of creamed onions or old Phil's possible objections to Noel's success in the theatrical world?"

"It's a twist of his mind," I said slowly, "just as is his mad determination to marry Noel to Princess Olina. [illegible] years ago when he was a youth in Transvania he loved Olina's mother, the present Queen Olga, and was compelled to see her married to his cousin. He is obsessed with the idea of his son ascending the throne of Transvania as Princess Olina's consort, and I don't think he will wish any taint of money earned even in so glamorous a way as the authorship of a musical drama to attach to his son. Noel must go to his bride as becomes a prince with an inherited fortune. I may be mistaken but I believe that is what Mr. Veritzen is planning."

Mr. Underwood struck his knee with his fist.

"Well, for ringing down the curtain," he exclaimed. "The doddering old idiot! Somebody ought to get out a writ and cart him off to Bellevue. But there's one thing certain. He's got bale enough salted away to give Noel the princely fortune you mention and still have enough left to buy or bide whenever he wishes."

He sprang up and began to range the room with long strides. Lillian and I watched him silently until at last he halted before the fireplace once more.

"This changes things," he said, "with this in the offing we'll have to keep the whole thing a dead secret from old Phil."

"What about G and B?" Lillian asked quietly.

"Yes, they're the next best bet," he said, "but you know what the season is. They're all chary about spending money just now on a new production unless the author has a hit or two already salted down. Old Phil could have done it for his son and never have missed the showmanship for that. However, we will see what can be done.

"I think it will be a better arrangement, anyway," he went on, "if we can get G and B to attempt it. If it succeeds, Noel will be independent of his father, which is the thing most to be desired. And if Noel is assured of financial independence, that means Mary will be freed from Phil's rule also."

"Why not give Mary a chance [illegible] freedom anyway?" Lillian [illegible]ly.

LOCAL DAMAGE CASE IN SUPREME COURT

Casualty Co. Seeks Reversal of Decision in Sheriff Washburn Action

Local attorneys for the Maryland Casualty Co. have started action in the state supreme court to reverse a recent decision in the damage suit brought by R. A. Gordon, as administrator of the estate of Raymond Reunels, against the Casualty company and Frank Washburn, former Marion county sheriff.

The casualty company has filed an application with the supreme court for permission to carry the appellate court decision to the high court. Hearing on the application will be held in Columbus, April 18.

The appellate court recently reversed a ruling of the Marion county common pleas court which held that the Casualty company, which bonded Washburn as sheriff, was not liable in this particular case since the sheriff was not on official business when his automobile struck and killed Reunels. Washburn, according to the testimony at the trial here [illegible] years ago, was returning a load of prisoners to the jail from a farm where they had been working when the accident occurred. Reunels was riding a motorcycle when he was struck by the sheriff's car.

The court here held that Washburn only was liable for damage. The plaintiff brought suit for damages amounting to $10,000. A jury returned a verdict of $3,000 against Washburn.

The law firm of Carhart & Warner, attorneys for the plaintiff, carried the case to the appellate court to have the casualty company held liable under the sheriff's bond. The recent decision of the appellate court upheld this contention.

The casualty company, through its attorneys, Mouser, Young, Mouser & Wiant, will attempt to have the supreme court sustain the county court by reversing the appellate court.

NEW RADIATING SYSTEM FOR WABC

ENGINEERS of the Columbia Broadcasting System have completed work on the new radiating system for the transmitters of the big key station, WABC, located on the shores of Jamaica bay, New York.

The new radiating system is of the "battleship" variety and is considered in technical circles as the most efficient type of aerial. It is a type more frequently referred to as a "cage" antenna.

In addition, it has been found necessary to add another emergency studio to WABC to relieve the congestion in the others which are now worked to capacity every day and night in the week. TRACK TEAM PLANNED AT HARDING HIGH

ATHLETIC KETTLE BOILING AS SPRING FOOTBALL STARTS

Meets Being Arranged for Red and Black Tracksters

TRACK promises to make a decided comeback at Harding high school this year if plans of Coaches Dewey Bobser and Paddy Compton materialize.

With spring football training in season under way the local coaches are starting to look over track material and work on the cinder track which happens to be clay will start within the next two weeks.

With more than 60 athletes turning out, spring football practice started last night. Fifty three suits have been issued and at least 10 or 15 more are awaiting equipment to enable them to participate in the practice session.

Coach Dewey Bobser who is directing the destinies of the grid squad is giving the future Harding stars an intensive course in fundamentals. Last night the players were given a very light workout intended to limber up stiff muscles. Practice will be held for the next several weeks.

Track at the local school has been on the downgrade for several years and this season will see a real attempt to revive the one time popular sport.

Dual meets are being arranged and it is possible that two such events will be held, it was learned. It is also planned to enter a team at Mansfield where most of the N. C. O. teams will participate later in the spring. The state district meet at Delaware will also have several entries from Harding.

Candidates for various berths on the track and field teams have been requested to start individual training in preparation for the start of outdoor practice.

CONNIE MACK RETURNS HOME, IS PESSIMISTIC

JACKSONVILLE Fla April 2—The Athletics were in charge of Eddie Collins today. Connie Mack having returned to Philadelphia where he expressed himself as being pessimistic for the present season regardless of the good showing the A's have made in the south. The A's defeated the Jacksonville squad yesterday 9 to [illegible]

CUBS AND YANKEES REMAIN FAVORITES TO TAKE PENNANTS

Wall Street Commissioners Quoting Final Prices Before Start of Races

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK April 2—If it was [illegible] as kindly of the [illegible] Red Sox as [illegible] will show the market [illegible] have the [illegible] watching that [illegible] thousand for the next month. If you [illegible] the St Louis Cardinals [illegible] If you fancy the New York Giants or Pittsburgh Pirates your [illegible] will be worth 7 and [illegible] either of these [illegible]

All of which means that the Wall Street betting commissioners are quoting what [illegible] their final prices [illegible] beginning this week [illegible] you can [illegible] and plenty of [illegible] stranger with [illegible] there to take your money and see that you get the right change.

Yanks Cubs Favored

The New York Yankees and the Chicago Cubs are the favored entries in most if not all books operating in the street. The price against the Cubs in at least two cases is 8 to 5 that they don't win the pennant with the Giants trailing along at 2½ to one. The Yankees are so highly esteemed that they rate even money in one book and another is willing to lay a price of 6 to 5 that the American league pennant is theirs for the asking. This commissioner even is ready to go further and parlay the Yankees in both the pennant and the 1929 world series offering to take [illegible] to 1.

Same Finishers

The Cubs Giants and Pirates in the National league and the Yankees Athletics and Browns in the American run one two three or thereabouts in all quotations. However [illegible] instance the Cardinals [illegible] with the Pirates at 3 to 1 [illegible] another the 1928 champions [illegible] no better than fourth [illegible] of 6 to 1. Further variations [illegible] found in the American league quotations one set including the Browns Washington Senators and Detroit Tigers at the same figure 10 to 1 while you could get 12 to 1 against the Tigers and 25 to 1 against the Senators from another [illegible]

From this it might be judged that the upheaval in the Detroit camp and the failure of Heine Schuble at shortstop doesn't mean a thing to Wall Street.

Odds Vary

The lad who wants to parlay the Yankees is inconsistent enough to offer only 7 to 1 against the Athletics and 7 to 1 against the Browns whereas he jumps sharply to 5 to 1 against the Senators, then he offers 10 to 1 the Cleveland Indians 10 to 1 against the Chicago White Sox and 60 to 1 against the Red Sox. Some of his competition on the other hand will lay as high as 100 to 1 against the Sox but only 20 to 1 against Chicago and 17 to 1 against Cleveland.

First division prices featuring the Cubs Giants Pirates and Cardinals run [illegible] in the National league and nearly all the books [illegible] the Cincinnati Reds [illegible] with their odds of 10 to 1 against a pennant for Jack Hendricks' [illegible] However one of them thinks the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Boston Braves [illegible] held no higher than 40 to 1 while another quotes 100 to 1 against the Braves and 60 to 1 against the Dodgers. The Phillies? One hundred to one almost anywhere and as high as 120 to 1 from the [illegible] who is willing to lay [illegible] against three that the Yankees [illegible] the pennant and series.

Although agriculture is Norway's [illegible] industry only about 1000 of its 125,000 square miles are under cultivation.

DANNY RAEBURN HAS GOOD RECORD AS AMATEUR AND PRO

Should Give Dundee Plenty Opposition on Fight Card Here

AL DUNDEE will face a real opponent in the main event of the Eagles' [illegible] Friday night when he [illegible] Danny Raeburn of Warren.

Both Raeburn and Dundee are booked for eight rounds in the feature [illegible] brought [illegible] according to the paper [illegible] of the best [illegible] of the season.

Raeburn who is attending Ohio Northern university and making his expenses by fighting has quite a record as an amateur and a professional.

In 1926 he won the eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania championship. The following year he took the [illegible] national championship at Cleveland. In his professional career he has fought Frankie [illegible] Tony D'Arco, Frankie Valley, Lew Goldman, Pete Mizzio and Youngstown Billy Wallace.

Raeburn has had 40 battles. Of these he won 25 and lost three. Twelve of his wins were by the knockout route.

In Raeburn fans will see a promising youth with a wicked right. He has plenty of science that should keep Dundee on the run during their bout.

With new apparatus for receiving pictures transmitted by radio the lines are drawn on sensitized paper with a jet of hot air.

SMOKE TALKS
by the
DUTCH MASTERS

When we say that Dutch Masters is "fine as any imported cigar" we are not just talking taffy. Try out a Dutch Masters alongside of any imported cigar you please. We believe that you will agree that the biggest difference between the two is the price.

We often wonder why no cigar manufacturer has fallen for the current advertising vogue of publishing glowing testimonials from the great and near great. Maybe it's because the big men who smoke cigars are too big to be interested in seeing their pictures in the paper.

No single quality alone makes a good cigar. Neither mildness nor fragrance nor "body." But a just right proportion of these qualities makes the kind of cigar that grows on you. Hence the increasing number of smokers who say "There's nothing like Dutch Masters."

Oils, Specialties Lead Industrial Shares Upward

PRICES UP SLIGHTLY IN INACTIVE TRADING

Short Covering Furnishes Principal Buying Power in First Hour

MONEY 12 PER CENT

Wall Street More Cheerful Over Speculative Credit Situation

NEW YORK, April 2—Under the lead of the oil stocks and specialties, the industrial list rallied to slightly higher price levels in an inactive market this morning. Transactions in the first half hour were under 400,000 shares, or about half as much as in the last three full sessions. Despite the 12 per cent. money renewal rate, Wall Street was a little more cheerful over the money situation, particularly in view of Secretary Mellon's statement that speculative credit had not been discussed at the reserve board meeting.

There was considerable short covering to be put through in the first hour, which furnished the market's principal source of buying power. American Can, National Cash Register and other well known speculative leaders rose a point or two on buying from this source. American Can topping 121 and National Cash Register 128.

As a group, the oil stocks made the best general progress toward the higher price levels. Cutting down of crude oil production this year, with 15 or 20 per cent. increase in consumption, gives the oil companies the best opportunit in five years to boost their profits. Standard Oil of California, in the lead of the oils, advanced about three points to 90; while Atlantic Refining gained two points and Houston rose three to 108¾.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

With the temperature hanging around freezing levels, the demand of Marion market customers tends toward heat-giving foods. This morning, the prices had registered no change.

Home-grown potatoes are now on the market at 25 cents a peck, with Michigan potatoes selling for slightly less. Fried, French fried, creamed or mashed, they play an important part in nearly every menu.

Although beans are selling around high levels at the present, there is still a good demand for them, new soup beans selling at 2 pounds for 27 cents. Yellow wax beans are now bringing 28 cents a pound on Marion markets.

In the fruit class, pears are inexpensive, being available at 5 pounds for 25 cents. Apples are now selling for $1.85 to $2.15 a bushel, several varieties being offered.

Meats are steady today, with high levels being maintained. The prices went up last week and have since remained from 2 to 3 cents higher.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 2—Private reports, good rains and other news of the growing wheat crop were all bearish marketwise resulted in a bearish marketwise resulted in a sharp reaction in local wheat prices yesterday. Unsettled credit conditions also continued a depressing influence. Coarse grains and rye were off in sympathy.

At the close, wheat prices registered net declines for the day of 1⅞@2c. Corn was 1@1½c lower; oats were ⅜c off, and rye was down 1¼@1½c. Winnipeg wheat futures closed 1½@1⅝c lower.

Wheat Trade Moderate

With Liverpool closed for Easter Monday, a partially crippled wire service because of storms over the week-end and a mixed sentiment causing speculative caution, trade was comparatively quiet. In the aggregate the selling was not large, but its persistence and the lack of buying power were responsible for lower values. Buying developed when the cost of privileges was reached, and short covering brought a small rally from the low point.

Private crop reports showed an average estimate of condition of around 81.2, against 81.1 in December and 88.8 a year ago. Estimates of Winter wheat yield by the private experts ranged from 563,000,000 bu. to 590,000,000 bu., averaging 570,000,000 bu. harvested last year. With moisture conditions at present very favorable, indications point to only average loss, despite backwardness of growth, the experts agree.

The bearish interpretation of these figures was augmented by the heavy rains over the week-end, some moisture received in parts of western Canada and the forecast for more precipitation there.

Export Trade Slow

Inasmuch as the private figures were practically as expected, there was a general tendency to consider them as discounted, which was one reason that selling was not aggressive. The lack of buying support wa sgenerally ascribed to the nervousness of the market and unsettled financial conditions.

Export trade continued dull and there was not much interest in cash wheat in the leading markets. World's shipments decreased 2,310,000 bu. due to the lighter offerings from both Argentina and the Canadian pool because of the declining values. A comparison with on passage stocks was lacking because of Liverpool being closed.

The decrease of 641,000 bu. in the domestic visible supply appeared to have little effect on the market, but was rather a disappointing item.

Corn Interest Light

Trade in corn continued desultory. Outside interest was still almost wholly lacking and speculative activity was confined to local professional interests. Prices were mainly influenced by the wheat market. Both cash and futures trade was slowed down some yesterday by the poor wire service.

Demand had been [illegible] of the [illegible] 2c lower; corn unchanged to ½c off; oats steady to ½c lower; rye steady; barley steady.
